ABSTRACT

This bibliography presents sources which trace the development of the International Federation of Library Associations and Institutions' (IFLA) policy for the support of librarianship in Third World countries, the development of awareness and sensitivity to its issues within the library and information world, and the way in which professionals in Third World countries have found an effective voice. Sources are listed for the following areas: (1) development of the Advancement of Librarianship in Developing Countries (ALP) core program; (2) the work of the division of regional activities and the sections on regional activities; (3) IFLA/UNESCO pre-session seminars for librarians from developing countries; (4) other IFLA conference papers; (5) IFLA's UAP (Universal Availability of Publications) and UBCIM (Universal Bibliographic Control) programs and the developing countries; (6) library and information work in the developing countries of Africa, Asia and Oceania, Latin America, and the Caribbean; (7) education and training; (8) qualification and harmonization of qualifications; (9) national libraries and legislative libraries; (10) university libraries; (11) public libraries; (12) school libraries and children's libraries; (13) preservation; (14) new technology; (15) publishing, reading, and literacy in developing countries; (16) UNESCO's General Information Programme; and (17) book aid programs, their donors, and regional library associations. The bibliography concludes with an index and ordering information for IFLA professional reports. (MAB)

INTRODUCTION

The origin of this bibliography was a literature search carried out in connection with the ALP study - a study of the operation, funding and future programme of a permanent IFLA office to support the ALP Core Programme. The study was initiated by Sveriges Allmänna Biblioteksförening, the Swedish Library Association (SAB), by agreement with the IFLA Executive Board, funded by SIDA, the Swedish International Development Agency, and carried out by Birgitta Bergdahl, Chief Librarian at the University of Linköping in Sweden. It was based at Uppsala University. The report of the study was published by Sveriges Allmänna Biblioteksförening as ALP. A proposal for the future (Stockholm 1990) and presented as a paper at the IFLA General Conference in Stockholm in August 1990 by Birgitta Bergdahl.

The literature search produced much valuable and fascinating material, and the work done has now been extended, with the addition of more general material and a longer time-coverage, into a bibliography.

The third world and IFLA

Third world membership in IFLA is increasingly important, and has historically been suprisingly strong - two members out of 25 in the membership list published in 1931, 28 out of 116 members in the 1967/8 membership list, 37 out of 262 in 1971, and 261 out of 1005 in 1981. Presently almost 70% of the countries that have members in IFLA are third world countries. This has not however always meant, and still does not quite mean, correspondingly high numbers of participants at IFLA conferences or on standing committees, or a proportionate influence on decision-making.

'It was not until the 1970's that the problems of the third world really began to influence fundamentally the programmes of IFLA and, accordingly, also the structure of IFLA' (IFLA and the Third World. IFLA, The Hague, 1987.) Reading the Actes of the IFLA Council before 1969, and the IFLA Communications in Libri in the 1950's and 1960's, one receives a strong impression that awareness of the particular problems of the third world was communicated only by a few lone voices. A paper by the great Ranganathan published in Libri in 1954 stands out :

> 'In their proposals and actions, the old view that 'international' in 'IFLA' is exhausted by Western Europe and Northern America persists . . to us outsiders it is as clear as daylight in the tropics . . The so-called developed countries generally obstruct new ventures by newly-awakening communities. They develop a kind of cataract in the mental eye . . . This tendency of the West to perpetuate itself into all times and all climes is dangerous in all human affairs. It is particularly so in the library sphere . . '

Unesco representatives at successive IFLA Council meetings from the late 1950's reported on their efforts in support of the third world (and urged IFLA for instance to form an Africa Section, at the IFLA Council in Rome in 1964). Joseph Soosai, Herman Liebaers, (with a paper at the IFLA Council meeting in Rome in 1964 and a passionate plea for the support of the third world in his Presidential Address there), Sir Frank Francis in successive Presidential addresses up to and including 1969, and Margreet Wijnstroom are the exceptions. There are few conference papers or reports before 1971 which are of specific interest to the third world, and others on general issues such as public libraries, school libraries or library training and qualifications make almost no special reference to the particular conditions and problems of third world countries. There were four papers on third world issues at Rome in 1964, one at The Hague in 1966, one resolution on the problems of collecting publications from developing countries in 1968 ; in 1968 and 1969 the Section on Periodicals and Serial Publications recommended publication of a practical guide to the cataloguing of serials ; but nothing else. (Interestingly, however, a Latino-American Regional Section was formed in 1962. It became the Grupo Regional América Latina in 1964, and seems to have been defunct after 1966.)

The first success in organising a major event of interest to the third world and its members in IFLA was the 1971 IFLA/Unesco Pre-session Seminar for Librarians from

Developing Countries - an important advance, but the seminar theme and the arrangement of the sessions are instructive. The title was 'Recent developments in advanced librarianship', all the chairmen for the discussions were from the developed countries, and the reports on the Seminar by participants from the third world illustrate some of the mistakes that were only too common with early efforts at cooperation with developing countries : 'The dichotomy between the concerns of the participants and those of the lecturers became immediately apparent', reported Rita Pankhurst from Ethiopia, and another participant commented that the accompanying exhibition was wonderful but irrelevant because all the material on display was so expensive.

Great strides have been made since then. The Working Group for Developing Countries, set up in 1971, led in 1976 to the establishment of the Division of Regional Activities and the three regional sections, for Africa, Latin America and the Caribbean, and Asia and Oceania, and the regional offices. The Pre-session Seminars became almost annual events which have helped bring third world members to the IFLA Council and General meetings. The number of papers of third world interest or by third world authors at the main IFLA conferences increases, and the sensitivity that all demonstrate towards third world issues continues to increase.

The ALP Programme was launched as an IFLA Core Programme in 1984 when the IFLA General Conference was held in Nairobi. Hitherto it has had no permanent office analagous to the offices for the other Core Programmes, but has been supported by IFLA HQ in The Hague. The study carried out by Birgitta Bergdahl clarified many issues concerning the programme, its content, and its relationship to the Regional Division and Sections, and resulted in a recommendation that an International Focal Point be set up at Uppsala University, to develop the programme. Funding for 18 months has been provided by SIDA and Uppsala University. Its location and functioning are to be reviewed after 5 years, when a host in a third world country will be sought.

Objective and coverage

The objective of the bibliography has been to trace the development of IFLA policy for support of librarianship in the third world over time, the development of awareness of and sensitivity to its issues within the library and information world, and the way in which professionals in third world countries have found an effective voice.

It does not aim to be a comprehensive bibliography of libraries and librarianship in the third world, which would be a much larger task. The emphasis on IFLA's own development has meant the omission of much fascinating material. It has not been possible to include the many Unesco papers and publications ; the general professional journals published in the third world have not been covered, neither have conferences organised by other library associations, including those of the third world. Nevertheless the items listed here tell a useful story in documenting IFLA's own development, and are themselves of immense value.

Sources

The sources which have been used in identifying IFLA publications and conference papers have been :
- Actes du Conseil de l'IFLA
- the bibliographies of IFLA conference papers published by the Royal School of Librarianship in Copenhagen for the years 1968-1979 and 1983, and by IFLA after 1986 (since 1983 as IFLA Communications)
- the lists of conference papers published in the IFLA Annual after 1971
- the clearing house set of IFLA papers at the British Library Information Sciences Service (which begins with papers deposited by participants at IFLA conferences from 1964)
- Libri for the section of IFLA Communications after 1953
- the IFLA Journal, which includes lists of conference papers in some years
- LISA on CD ROM

- the BDI database held by Bibliotekshögskolan i Borås (the School of Library and Information Science at Borås in Sweden)

Arrangement

The arrangement adopted, almost an archivist's arrangement, reflects the objective of the bibliography. The language in which references are presented is that in which a paper was first given. As far as possible all papers have been examined, but since there are inevitable discrepancies between coverage of the IFLA Bibliographies, lists in the IFLA Annual, lists of conference papers provided at the conferences, and the clearing house sets, not all have been seen, so that information, paper numbers and page numbers have not been verified for all.

Acknowledgements

I would like to express my warm thanks to Sveriges Allmänna Biblioteksförening for the opportunity to carry out the project ; to IFLA HQ for the encouragement to develop it for publication ; to the library of Bibliotekshögskolan i Borås, the School of Library and Information Science in Sweden, for references generously provided from the BDI database ; and to the British Library Information Sciences Service for the ideal kind of access to a clearing house set of IFLA conference papers, much photocopying, and assistance with online searching. Carol Priestley gave much help in identifying other organisations involved in library and book aid in the third world, and above all Birgitta Bergdahl gave guidance and the benefits of her great experience of third world countries.
